In this article I will debate the main points of why and how the gadgets can significantly improve our life.

Gadgets are enjoyable

First of all gadgets are very cool and they make us smile and say: wow, it's great! A gadget can always make you feel better because they access your deepest needs: comfort, security, usefulness and maybe most important, you can play with them. Some would say that they like gadgets because it makes their life easier. In my opinion we love gadgets because gadgets are toys. Gadgets are toys for the big boys or girls. We really enjoy playing with them, testing them and integrating them in our lives. Babies have suzettes we have gadgets.

Gadgets equal many products in one

The best example is the Swiss Army Knife: knife, fork, spoon, screwdriver, tweezers, lantern, compass etc. In one compact product you get 10-50 other products. This is a very important characteristic of a gadget. A gadget incorporates every time more than one product.

Gadgets make our life easier

Let's take for example the Thonka headband for iPod. It is was designed to help iPod users not to carry their iPod in their pockets. Who wouldn't want to have their hands free. For some users who like jogging this could be a very useful gadgets. When you will go for a run your iPod will not jump from your pocket, your hair will stay in place and your sweat will be retained.

That's why it is important for you to stay up to date with the new gadgets. Being a gadget fan will help you to be more productive and you'll be able to concentrate more on your goals and job. Of course you must read gadgets reviews. A problem can occur when you become obsessed with gadgets (a gadget freak) and you buy gadgets only because they are the latest available and you must have them. We could say you are a big kid if you are doing that. It's ok to play with gadgets but moderation is the main key word here.

Gadgets save us space

One important point is that gadgets help us save space. The "saving space" utility it's a derivate of the principle "many products in one". Let's take for example the BlackBerry cell phone. The BlackBerry is a small stylish cell phone with the capabilities of a laptop. Of course it's not a laptop or a notebook but with one single product you can talk, send e-mails, edit word documents, navigate on the Internet, chat and so on. For some dollars you get a nice piece of technology. Also it's very important to point out that the BlackBerry is cheaper than a notebook.

Conclusion: Gadgets make our life easier, save our money and most important, our TIME

This is my conclusion. Gadgets really save us time, and time is our most important resource. Gadgets are relatively cheap if you take into consideration that it will cost you much more to buy 20 products that do different things than one that does them all. Gadgets are designed to have many utilities that will help us improve our productivity. And let's not forget the fun part: we like playing with gadgets!
