Myspace is probably the largest social network on the internet with over 107 million account sign ups to date. It is estimated that myspace now has over 15 million unique users. With its popularity rising and its members increasing, it is getting easier and easier to meet new people through myspace. Myspace also makes it much easier to stay in touch with friends that you would normally not keep in touch with because of distance and time barriers.

I am sure you know by now that there are plenty of myspace tools that can automatically add friends for you.

MySpace friend adders have become a great tool in maximizing the MySpace experience. Since MySpace has become popular, so has the importance of having tons of MySpace friends. This can benefit the casual MySpace user, the MySpace Music artist, and even the web publishers and marketers that use MySpace as a stepping stone toward success. Now MySpace friend adders have gone even further by adding other MySpace abilities to their programming. The possibilities are endless with a MySpace friend adder. But you have to make sure you choose the right one.

Most casual MySpace users find that having a lot of friends can help boost their social life or even their fun on the internet. But we all know how tedious and boring adding friends can be. This is where the right MySpace friend adder can be helpful. Over night you can have 500 new friends to get to know. Not only are they on your friend list, but with the new technology in MySpace friend adders, you can message, comment, or even send a bulletin to all of them automatically. This technology is helpful for everyone and can be some incredible marketing if done properly.

Now A day Myspace Friend adders programs out there most of them do the same and 90% all of them are good, but based on my latest reviews there are some of them that really care and if you are trying to have one of them I will recommend you to have it, because they are really useful and follow almost all the standards required by Myspace.

Before you start doing any research that you can do, here I will show you my best list of Myspace Friend adder programs I know.

Adders like Badder Adder, and MySpace Friend Connect are the best there is right now, but they each have their advantages.

Badder Adder is one of the newest MySpace friend adding programs. This program allows you to not only send mass messages, comments, and bulletins, but you can time them so they will be sent according to your schedule automatically. This is great for the web publisher that has new products every week. It also lets you use multiple accounts which can be very useful.

MySpace Friend Connect is a great looking MySpace friend adding program. With this program you can automatically gather friend IDs and send friend requests based on age, gender, geographic location, interests, or randomly. It also will never send a friend request to the same person twice or to existing friends.

MySpace automatic friend adding technology is making MySpace better and better each day, if you really like to make friends or build friends networks for personal or business proposals don't keep behind move forward and take the change is giving this great technology that makes life easier.
