Have you ever heard about sand painting? Sand painting is a rediscovered craft that has its origin in the greatest deserts of the world.

What you need to do while sand painting?

- Empty jars or containers
- Powdered tempera paints in a variety of colors
- Clean sand from a beach
- Paper, plastic, glue and popsicle stick
- Plastic spoon and a plastic tray

Steps to follow while sand painting

- Draw out any picture on paper. It would be advisable if you keep the picture as simple as possible.
- Once you are done with the drawing pour out some sand into an empty container.
- Select a color of powdered tempera and add just a little to dry the sand.
- If you need more vibrant colors you need to add more tempera to the sand.
- Once you are done with the color mixing part you can begin your sand painting.
- You need to paint one section at a time. First decide where the color is going, put an even layer of glue on the paper and pour some colored sand on to the glue using a plastic spoon.

- Repeat the above point until the entire paper is covered.
- Now that everything is done allow the sand painting to dry.
