One of the best places in South Carolina, Charleston is a great city to visit for so many reasons. You can find amazing tours and visit amazing museums that will teach you more than you could imagine about significant people and events that are rooted in Charleston.

Another great reason to visit Charleston is the sheer beauty of the place. I have been to few cities that have ranked nearly as high on the scale of natural beauty as Charleston. There is something about the quaintness of the city that invites visitors in and makes them feel like they are a part of something special. Charleston is big enough but not too big to get overwhelmed in. It is the perfect size to visit.

Charleston also boasts great hospitality, and I have never been let down when it comes to feeling welcomed and at home in this great southern state. The people are always warm and friendly and ready to help in any way possible.
