You would never want to know all about the frustration lost luggage can cause. Luggage care attendants have an enormous task of taking care of your luggage, while you're still on the ground. Several pieces of information your luggage tags should contain to help your luggage arrive safely at your destination at the same time as you do. "The most important information you can put on a luggage tag is your name, home address and telephone number," and we also suggest that if you carrying a cell phone on vacation, use that number instead.

I also warn that luggage does occasionally get caught on various machines or can get wet if there is inclement weather, so it is important to make a tag that is durable and waterproof. Our tags are 10 mil thickness, which is heavy duty. Many companies only offer 5 mil luggage tags, and will fall apart easily. As well, and we also note that our unique bright tags definitely STAND OUT in a sea of baggage.
