The HDTV, or High Definition Television takes TV watching to that next level. Not only is it the hippest and most trendy type of TV available in the market today, it is also the coolest TV experience ever!

So what is it that makes the HDTV as ultra chic and as coveted as it is?

Well, for starters, HDTV has the features of a regular movie theatre. Every well-defined television makes the experience of watching a movie magical. However, admittedly, the movie's we like the best, we watch at cinema theatres where we get a closer look and feel of the characters due to the surround system. At home, there is comfort, at the theatre there is quality. To put an end to this tussle between two highly important features of the movie watching experience, we present to you the HDTV. Not only is it rich in terms of picture quality and sound, it is also available right at your home. So that you can make movie watching a family affair.

Once you have your HDTV home, you now have to engage yourself with wall mounting the TV. It is a great idea to display your HDTV since wall mounting not only saves space, it also prevents the TV from dominating the room. The wall mounts are preferably made of steel such as the ones on <http://www.tv-wall-> brackets.co.uk. The common mounts let the TV to be fixed on the wall, but there are more stylish types that have a number of rotation angles to make it possible to turn the TV if needed.

Wall mounts with swivels also provide rotation of the TV around a horizontal axis, because of the space saving factor of it and the way it prevents your television from dominating the room, is a very popular way of displaying it.

But that's not all. HDTV is also the hottest Television system particularly designed to support prompt distribution of programs. And if at all that wasn't enough, it also provides 5 times the resolution provided by your regular TV!!!!

Unlike the age old analogue Television system you are probably using now, the content for the new HDTV is brought to you by specific service providers (much like Cable TV some years ago). Once you obtain a subscription, you quickly get hooked to the transmission.

That is not to say that you can't get the subscription if you own a previous generation Television system. All you need is a tuner from your local hardware store to put you at the right frequency. However, don't expect the top class quality you are promised by an HDTV from this arrangement. Not only will you be losing out on the large screen experience this way, you will also miss a glimpse of the fine movie-theatre like resolution.

The High Definition Television is the next big thing in the television industry. Ever since the rude intervention of the Internet, the Television market has been snooping around for a break like this. Now it is finally here and how?! Everyone wants a bite of the big league, so every brand you can think of has plunged into the game. As a result, you will be spoiled for choice while making your buy.

Choosing the right set for yourself from this wide variety can be a tough job because competition among the brands is cut-throat and prices differ by a hair's width. Even if you go by the plain look and feel of the sets, you will be left biting your nails because each new HDTV is highly stylized and colourful in terms of design.

Therefore, play it safe (as you should when you are fiddling with new technology) and buy a set provided by a known and time-tested brand.

Once you make your purchase, relax and catch up your favourite movies in true multiplex style in your own home with your family.
