These bags may have gone underground for a while, where the general traveling public is concerned, but for the experienced traveler they have always been the gold standard.

Far superior

Many of the luggage products offered today are of nylon fabric construction. This material is a decent material for a piece of luggage but prone to manufacturing quality issues. The fabric holds together fairly well but the stitching can have a tendency to pull from the zippers and seams can split. For the most part, this is due to the locations that manufacture the products. Quality inspection is not as rigorous as it could be because manufacturers follow a different business model.

Hard charging luggage

The versatility of leather luggage is renowned to the traveling public at large. There is a reason that leather luggage has been in use for as long as it has. It is the most versatile and durable type of luggage available. At one end of the leather bag spectrum is the basic valise. These open mouthed bags are grab and go bags that can carry just about everything in a wide open stiff bottomed bag. Throw the bag around and do your worst. This bag will stand up and protect your belongings with no signs of adverse damage.

Exceedingly reasonable price

Some may have the traveler believe that leather luggage is an expensive option. This is just flat wrong. Leather luggage is reasonably priced by any measure and in some instances even better than other options. Consider the 5 piece luggage set from between $150.00 and $410.00. For many other types of luggage you would need to search far and wide for pricing such as this. The even better part of this particular pricing is that you will be getting the full advantages of leather. When others are on their third set of luggage your first set of leather luggage will just be getting ready for the action ahead. Buy it once, buy it for life.

The leather quality

The process of getting a piece of leather to the stage where it can be ready to become a fine piece of leather luggage is arduous. Each step requires close attention to detail. By the time the leather reaches the luggage manufacturer it is soft and supple yet strong and ready to last more than a lifetime. A vast majority of leather luggage manufacturers realize this and continue the piece of leathers journey with the same craftsmanship that it was given before it got to them. Heavier denier yarns are used to make sure that stitching lasts for decades upon decades. Where grommets are required, only the finest materials are used. The maker of the piece of leather luggage you buy thinks of it as a symbol of pride, just as you do when you show it off during your travels.

Around the world and back again

If one bag is just not enough and you plan of an extended voyage most leather luggage product lines have a full set that will suit your varied needs. Make-up case to shaving kit-garment bag to backpack a full set of leather luggage will set you up for whatever the world has to throw at you. Perhaps the most important leather bag that a full set of luggage may offer you is the bag for your suits and dresses. Many of today's suit bags offer space for one or possibly two suits or dresses before you begin to cram another change into the bag. Most leather luggage sets, however, offer you a roomier bag with the option of up to five suits or dresses. Ultimately, this option indicates just how much attention leather luggage manufacturers pay to what you, as a traveler, ask for in the construction of your bag.
