Article Body:

Make sure that you research cash advance companies before deciding on one. Ask questions to make sure that you choose the best company, including its policies, for you and your financial situation. Most cash advance companies are not out there trying to mislead you and will treat you fairly and with respect. However, there are those companies that may not be as up-front as they should be, so be sure you research your options thoroughly.

The companies that are trying to trick you will not try to help you if you miss a payment, and may instead hit you with a higher interest rate or even add more on to your loan in fees. This is just one reason why you should research your choice thoroughly and be cautious in making your decision. Ask what happens or read the fine print to find out the consequences of a missed or late payment so you will know what to expect. Most of the fair companies will add on your missed interest charge for the month of the missing payment, but they will not be unduly unfair in raising the interest rates or adding on exorbitant fees.
