Your own printable baby shower invitations

1.   Giving the invitation a design. Using a simple and easy to understand word processor such as the Microsoft Word, decide on and pick the right dimension for your invitation after which you can print out a test on a plain paper to make certain that the size is right.

2.   Think of a theme, wherein all colors, designs and graphics will be based from it.

3.   Look for and choose a card stock that appeal to your taste, so you can print on your invitations to it. Your local craft or office supply establishment have a variety of designs and they are very affordable too. Remember to choose a paper with not much color in it, as then it would compete with the colors that you may have on your graphic. A simple lightly colored textured paper is best.

4.   Using a word processor, insert text boxes; in the text box, type in the wording that you want on your invitation. Here, you can have choices as to what font and color to use. Do keep in mind to keep it simple. Do not be overwhelmed by all the colors you see. At the most, you should only use three colors as too much of it can make your invitation look more of a mess then what it really is.

5.   In the net, many sites offer and provide baby shower graphics for free which you can readily use in your invitation. By searching for "free graphics" on any search engine the results will be plenty, and you will surely find a site offering free graphics.
